

Mindray North America | Research Grants

Guidelines and Qualifications

- Mindray may consider funding for research grants that are externally initiated proposals to advance medical and scientific knowledge about Mindray's products and therapeutic areas of interest when the research advances clinical, medical or healthcare economic outcomes.
- Such grants requests should include the following:
  - Proposed Research Plan
    - How it supports development data;
    - What scientific and clinical questions it could answer; and
    - How it would generate and publish data to support reactive scientific, clinical exchange or healthcare economic outcomes
  - Disclosure of industry-sponsored research within the past 3 years
  - Proposed research protocol
  - Budget
  - Qualifications of the researcher
  - Answers to the following questions:
    - Will researcher be fully responsible for obtaining all necessary regulatory and IRB approvals for the study? If no, please explain.
    - Will researcher obtain patient informed consent and privacy authorization? If no, please explain.
    - Will an investigational device exemption (IDE) be required?
- Mindray will not fund research grants that are:
  - Provided to a person or organization excluded from participation in Medicare, Medicaid or other federal healthcare programs by the Department of Health and Human Service's Office of Inspector General or barred from federal contracting by the General Services Administration/System for Award Management.
  - Provided to a person or organization debarred or disqualified by the Food and Drug Administration.
  - Provided to a person or organization identified on the U.S. State Department's Terrorist Exclusions List or the U.S. Treasury Department's list of Specially Designated National or Block Persons.
  - Provided to a person or organization employing a person in connection with the research that is restricted from practicing medicine, nursing or other medical profession in any jurisdiction.
